The 2002-2003 school year brought about the usual changes. All seven students grew taller, learned how to read better, and in the process learned new concepts. Each of these seven are maturing rapidly in their spiritual lives as well. They have memorized verses and have been able to learn about the life of Christ through daily devotional times. A Christmas pageant gave them the chance to act out the birth of Christ, and they heard the story of His rising as part of the Easter party. They put these lessons into action by their encouragement to each other and their generous attitudes. May the author of their lives complete the wonderful work He began in each one of these boys and may the next year bring more growth mentally, socially and spiritually. May God bless each one of them.
